Fellini Prize

The jury awarded the prize to this film as they considered that it carries an important message for the present and the future. The theme developed in the film gives rise to ethical considerations in relation to the many possibilities that rapidly developing research in genetics is opening up for mankind. The argument is enhanced by the way this issue is translated in film language; it was most forcefully expressed in this film, as compared to the three other films nominated for this prize.

United Kingdom	DESIGNER BABIES	Iain Gaffney
